

A serene landscape photograph of a calm lake reflecting the surrounding forested mountains. The scene is shrouded in a light mist, creating a soft, ethereal atmosphere. The water in the foreground is still, acting as a perfect mirror for the distant peaks and the dense line of trees along the shoreline. The overall color palette is dominated by cool blues and greys, with subtle hints of green and brown from the foliage.

"Throughout the years, I've had the pleasure of viewing Kent's unparalleled eye for serenity and beauty through his lens.

His images encourage us to stroll through the myriad landscapes of our planet, weaving a narrative that speaks to the interconnected essence of our world.

These are more than just a collection of photographs, they are a timeline of love letters to the earth. As we gaze into them, we do more than look, we converse. They tell stories of places and moments that are both fleeting and eternal, urging us pause and appreciate the changing yet constant nature that surrounds us."

"Kent was raised in North Dakota's capital city of Bismarck. While his rather idyllic upbringing, in a relatively small community along the Missouri River, provided an almost Norman Rockwell experience, he was keenly aware that there was a big world "out there."

After graduating college, he landed a job in the rapidly expanding technology field, which gave him new opportunities, to live in and experience much of what was offered "out there." Kent lived or worked in Italy, Brazil, Argentina, Australia, and England. His wanderlust took him to further reaches within and beyond these countries.

In all of those sometimes-exotic locales, he found joy and focus in what he encountered on the plains of North Dakota—nature—and landmarks that define our sense of place. From a moon rise over the Dakota badlands, to that same moon over London, his keen eye and camera capture moments in time, now to be shared with those who can enjoy in limited-edition photographic art.

Along his life's journey, he also discovered a talent for poetry. Reading his verses while gazing upon his work is a sublime combination.

From humble beginnings, he became a man of the world, with a camera in hand. His remarkable art reflects all that makes Kent Burkhardsmeier uniquely talented."

"Kent's photographs hold a wonderful sense of yutori, the Japanese concept broadly defined as a state of spaciousness and well-being achieved by slowing down. The tranquility of his scenes, while precise in their composition and detail, draws viewers into calming environments where they may pause, reflect, and marvel.

To offer up the many grandeur of our world in a way that invites curiosity, and ultimately happiness, is a trait special to Kent's work. He is intrepid in his pursuit of nature's beauty, yet we are aware that same goal is humbling for him.

The ultimate outcome from his journeys are these marvelous moments, captured for us to quietly behold with awe and a shared connection. Each photograph pays homage to both the subject and the opportunity to capture it."

— Salar de Uyuni —

The world's largest salt flat, over 3,900 square miles (10,000 sq km) in area. Located in Bolivia near the crest of the Andes at an elevation of 12,000 ft (3,657m) above sea level.

The large area, clear skies, and exceptional flatness of the surface make the Salar ideal for calibrating the altimeters of Earth observation satellites.

Salar means salt flats in Spanish. Uyuni originates from the Aymara language and means a pen (enclosure).

Influence of Color

"Color provides a psychic vibration. Color hides a power still unknown but real, which acts on every part of the human body."

— Wassily Kandinsky

The colors within nature are deeply rooted in human nature. For example, green, blue, brown, orange, and yellow are the color of our ancestors—forest dwelling, hunter-gathers. Early humans thrived where there was an abundant source of food and water. Wooded habitats provided shelter from predators and atmospheric elements. Wetlands (lakes, rivers, and oceans) provided sources of nourishment and transportation. Their social communities flourished in these surroundings.

Our reactions to colors are deeply rooted within our DNA. Intertwined with personal experiences, colors can transform our moods, stimulate memories, and enhance our well-being.

The chart on the opposite page shows common psychological influence of colors found within nature.

For example, adding images of nature with predominate green colors to a room can make the space a more soothing place. While, adding images of nature with predominate blue colors can make the space peaceful and inspirational.

Nature Boosts Well-being

Research and studies have confirmed our experiences, that nature has beneficial impacts on our well-being. For example, I feel more alive when I'm out in nature. Richer and cleaner air fills our lungs, revitalizing our cells, and releasing stored toxins. Urban stress is reduced as blood flows easier. Our thoughts and tension dissipate.

Colors, sounds, and scents found within nature have therapeutic benefits to our well-being. Research has shown we receive numerous therapeutic benefits from color psychology, color therapy, and ecotherapy. Nature embodies benefits from each of these. [Cherry 2022, Bassett 2020, MacKerron 2013, Clay 2001]

When our minds are less stimulated, our brains are allowed time to rest. We experience benefits from a shift in our hormones; reactionary (flight, fight, freeze) hormones replaced by restorative (happiness, comfort) hormones.

Those same studies show that individuals can still receive nature's benefits by looking at nature or visualizing nature. Viewing images that combine natural landscape and its colors, allows us to connect with nature and receive these same benefits when we are not able to be physically outdoors.

Nature photographic images are a perfect vehicle for bringing nature inside—your home, office, and soul.

(Relative print sizes, not actual sizes)

Print Sizing

Signature Collection prints are available in two different formats: Art on Paper and Art on Metal.

Art on Paper prints follow conservation printing standards on archival fine art paper (textured matte paper) with archival pigment ink. Each print is titled, signed, and numbered in the bottom border on the front of the print. Every collector receives a signed, stamped, and dated Certificate of Authenticity from the artist.

Art on Paper prints are typically available in four different sizes dependent on the image's aspect ratio. (Framing and mounting not included in sizing dimensions.)

Art on Paper	Approximate Length
	Horizontal Print	Vertical Print
Gallery	20"	30"
Designer	24"	36"
Collector	30"	45"
Commission	> 40"	>50

Art on Metal prints follow the best industry standards for printing on Chromaluxe aluminum metal panels with archival substrate pigments. Art on Metal prints are printed with a soft satin-like matte finish and have a framed to edge mount.

Each print is signed and numbered on the front within the image. Every collector receives a signed, stamped, and dated Certificate of Authenticity from the artist.

Art on Metal prints are typically available in three different sizes dependent on the image's aspect ratio.

Art on Metal	Approximate Length
	Horizontal Print	Vertical Print
Designer	24"	36"
Collector	36"	45"
Commission	> 40"	>50

Edition Numbering

Prints are numbered relative to the edition quantity. Edition number of prints depends on the size, medium, and technique of the printed image.

Once all the prints in an edition have been sold, then the corresponding print size is retired — never to be printed again.

The artist reserves the right to print up to 3 artist proofs.

The tables show the available prints sizes and the number of prints per edition:

Art on Paper Prints	Limits	Numbering Example
Gallery	15	1/15
Designer	10	1/10
Collector	7	1/7
Commission	1	1/1

Art on Metal Prints	Limits	Numbering Example
